

Cookbook Project

Our Cookbook project began in November, in time for Thanksgiving. Each student thought about a meal or special dish they would like to create a recipe for. We learned about sequential writing and practiced using transitional words such as "First, Then, Next, Last." Once we had chosen our special dish, we thought about the types of ingredients which we would need to use. You can see from the attached examples, each child's ingredients and special dish was unique. Once we had our cookbooks (like pictured above), and Walmart Grocery on the laptops to create a budget. Our budget helped us figure out the total cost of the items we need to make our dish. We added the total cost (differentiated: using calculators if needed), and included this in our recipes. Finally, we wrote the step by step directions for our special dishes.
