

Economic Skills

In Social Studies, students practiced their economic skills by producing and selling donuts made of playdough to consumers. They were given a start-up allowance, bought supplies, constructed boxes out of index cards, and created price lists for their products. Then they shopped with their profits. Strawberry sold out quickly, as the demand was high!

